

AuroraScreen automatically ranks every job applicant and issues a final hire or no-hire decision without any human review. Recruiters cannot override the model, and candidates are not informed that an automated system decided their application. The system pre-filters applicants by age and gender, and stores each applicant's full browsing history and date of birth for undefined future analytics.